ABSTRACT

Intended to provide guidelines for similar future undertakings, this report provides a comprehensive record of a serials cataloging project undertaken by the General Reference and Periodicals Department of the University of Miami's Otto G. Richter Library between January 1985 and August 1986. The project was designed to catalog the department's abstract and index (A&I) collection in order to provide a subject arrangement by call number. A brief introduction summarizes the project, and detailed discussions describe preliminary project activities, the cataloging process, recordkeeping procedures, preparing for the reorganization, the reorganization itself, and the final phase of the project. A revised label policy developed to combat the problem of call number labels not adhering properly is also included. In addition, the following information is provided in eight appendices: (1) A&I Transfer List; (2) Inventory and Reclassification Lists; (3) A&I Alphalist; (4) A&I Shelflist; (5) A&I Keyword Index; (6) A&I Subject List; (7) sample records from the reorganization; and (8) A&I Cancellation and Discontinued Lists. PREFACE

In the General Reference and Periodicals Department of the University of Miami, the Abstracts and Index collection has traditionally been arranged alphabetically by title. In 1985 and 1986, all of these serials were cataloged in order to provide a subject arrangement.

There was much more to this project, however, than just cataloging the volumes. A tremendous amount of paperwork and record keeping developed. Procedures and policies had to be worked out for many aspects of the collection. More people were involved than had been originally planned.

In June 1986, with the cataloging finished, the collection was rearranged into call number order. A methodology* was developed which allowed us to drastically disrupt and rearrange a highly used collection while maintaing high standards of service and accessibility. A collection of over 7,000 volumes was shifted in less than four days with very little manpower and no interruption in reference service.

The purpose of this report has been to record as fully as possible every step of the project, so that it may be used as a guideline for future undertakings of this type. We hope that the lessons we learned will help others when doing similar projects.

* The methodology mentioned in this report has been refined and expanded. For those readers interested in a step-by-step guide to this methodology, please refer to "Reference Service vs. Work Crews: Meeting the Needs of Both During a Collection Shift" by the authors which will be published in a 1988 issue of the Reference Librarian.

HONORABLE MENTION

Many people worked on this project but certain people helped so much that we felt they deserved this honorable mention. Lillian Labelle did a tremendous amount of work patiently processing the A&I's through cataloging. Luis Garcia, a work-study student, checked every volume of the collection to insure that each had the proper labels and changed the call numbers of all the reclassification titles. Laura Valenti, also a work-study student, very accurately typed hundreds of new call number labels. Both of these students worked to apply these labels. We would also like to thank the Mending Department who so patiently removed old call numbers and put on new call numbers for so many thousands of volumes. Don Carreau of the Reference Department was a tremendous help during the reorganization.

I. Introduction

Between January 1985 and August 1986, the Abstract and Index (A&I) area of the General Reference and Periodicals Department was completely reorganized. Primarily, four librarians were supervisors of this project: Terri Robar (Reference), Susi Seiler (Reference), Judith Rabkin (Cataloging), and Elsie Cordoba (while in Reference until her transfer to Cataloging, September 1985). Judith supervised all the cataloging. Elsie began the work on the first floor but was later assisted and then replaced (after her transfer) by Terri and Susi.

The decision had been made to catalog all A&I's to provide a subject arrangement. This was the main focus of the project and was conducted throughout the twenty month period. Several related or subsidiary projects developed out of this which served to greatly complicate the main project.

II. Preliminaries

With the assistance of Tom Rogero, the Head of the Reference Department, a firm, written policy was developed in Spring 1985 as to what materials were to be included in the A&I collection.

> This section shall contain abstracts and indexes covering journals, magazines, theses, dissertations, or conference proceedings. At least 80% of the entries in an index must cover one or more of these types of materials. Any index which has been superseded by cumulative volumes shall be removed, withdrawn, or transferred. Any title which has not been received in five years shall be reviewed for possible transfer to the general stacks or another location.

The collection was then thoroughly reviewed by Elsie, Terri and Susi and all materials that did not fit the policy were transferred out. As a result, seventeen (17) titles were transferred to the Reference collection, seven (7) titles to Periodicals, one (1) title to Microforms/Reserve, seven (7) titles to Government Publications, and forty-seven (47) titles to the general stacks. (See Appendix A). Many of the titles going to Reference or the stacks had to be cataloged before they could be moved. Also, four (4) titles were withdrawn completely.

Other collections were then reviewed for titles which did fit the policy and which were then transferred into the A&I area. This resulted in five (5) titles being moved from Periodicals and seventeen (17) titles from the Reference collection. (See Appendix A).

It was noticed at this time that there had been a considerable lag in the binding of many A&I and Reference titles. Susi undertook the task of clearing this backlog as well as pulling current A&I volumes for binding. She will continue to pull the current A&I volumes until January 1987 at which time the bindery personnel will take over the task. At the end of the project, Susi was asked to develop a detailed procedures manual to assist the bindery personnel with this work. It was expected to be started in September 1986.

Mickey Tsouprake (Serials Cataloging) had to make a bindery specification card for all of the titles which did not already have one. These cards specify such things as the frequency of binding and the exact color of the binding.

Before sending the volumes to bindery, Susi's work included:

Pulling issues from the shelves.

Determining the frequency and color of binding, if necessary.

Correcting the bindery specification cards, if necessary.

Withdrawing duplicate copies of loose issues.

Preparing lists of volumes sent to bindery.

Posting these lists at the Reference desk, with Terri, and with Francine Everson (Bindery).

When the volumes returned from the bindery, Susi's work included:

Checking the information printed on the spine of each volume.

Minor corrections were sent to Mending.

Major corrections were returned to the binder.

Affixing the A&I and For Reference Only labels.

Shelving the bound volumes.

Another problem which was recognized at this time dealt with the current issues of the A&I's. Many issues were not getting to their proper places and superseded issues were not being removed. Terri and Tom worked on several occasions to clear up the latter problem by simply combing the shelves to remove the superseded issues. To deal with the former, it was decided that all current issues would henceforth be channeled through Terri. All staff and student assistants in both the Reference area and the Periodical area were firmly told that all new A&I issues and cumulative bound volumes had to go to Terri first. The Government Publications Department was also notified of this arrangement since they send two titles to the first floor A&I area. This arrangement continued throughout the remainder of the project. It has, for the most part, worked quite well and will therefore be continued as normal procedure.

The work included (usually on a daily basis):

Checking the call number on each issue (if one had yet been assigned).

Affixing an A&I label.

Shelving the issues.

Removing and discarding all superseded issues.

Marking the reference shelflist cards for cumulative bound volumes.

III. Cataloging

In January 1985, an examination of the A&I collection showed that a small number of the titles were already cataloged. These were ones which had at some point been part of the Reference collection. The remaining titles were uncataloged and had a tremendous diversity of both size and cataloging difficulty.

Judith Rabkin and Elsie Cordoba began with some of the simpler titles in order to establish the procedures for the project.

Within a very short time, it became clear that the records for this collection contained many errors. It was at this point that Terri Robar and Susi Seiler were recruited to help with the preliminary projects mentioned in the preceding section. The remainder of the Spring and Summer of 1985 was primarily occupied by these projects, particularly the cataloging of titles that had to be transferred out of the A&I collection.

In the Fall 1985, Terri, Susi, and Judith compiled several lists of A&I's which eventually resulted in the A&I titles being divided into four groups: Done, Catalog, Inventory, and Reclassification. The first category, Done, were those titles which had already been cataloged (either prior to or during the first part of this project) and to which nothing further needed to be done.

The second category, Catalog, consisted of those titles which had never been cataloged, were one section or less in size, and which would be physically removed from the floor and taken to Cataloging for processing. This was the largest category with the greatest number of titles and included 2,320 bound volumes plus the unbound issues. For this category, Terri handled the work on the first floor.

This work included:

Pulling the volumes from the shelves (usually two or three titles at a time).

Pulling all periodical backfile cards for Judith.

Accounting for all volumes (often involved searching Periodicals on first and seventh floors).

Writing want slips for missing issues.

Preparing any volumes to be sent to the bindery.

Delivering volumes to cataloging.

Providing Mickey Tsouprake with photocopies of backfile cards.

Placing photocopies of backfile cards marked with the date in A&I drawer at Reference Desk.

Once the volumes were delivered to Cataloging, Judith took over.

Her work included:

Searching the titles in OCLC (including all title changes) and establishing the entries.

Assigning call numbers and subject headings when necessary.

Editing the record when necessary.

Providing workslips for herself, Lillian Labelle (Cataloging), and Miriam Chamberlain (Serials Acquisitions).

The volumes then went to Lillian whose work included:

Cataloging each title.

Preparing the books for the Mending Department.

Providing catalog cards for the main card catalog and other files.

Keeping statistics on the number of volumes cataloged.

The volumes then went to Mending to have the call numbers written on the outside and the necessary labels placed on the inside. After Mending was finished, Terri took over again. Her work now included:

Retrieving the books from Mending.

Removing all cards, clips, etc.

Checking all call numbers and labels.

Reshelving the books.

Correcting the cards in the A&I drawer at the Reference Desk.

Updating all lists with the new call numbers.

It was necessary throughout the project for Terri to keep Susi advised of which titles were scheduled for cataloging within the next three to four weeks so that none of the volumes would be sent to the bindery.

The third category, Inventory, consisted of those titles which had never been cataloged, were more than one section in size, and which would not be physically removed from the floor. Although this was a very short list (only eleven titles), they were all very long titles and included 2,272 bound volumes plus the unbound issues. (See Appendix B).

Although the volumes never left the floor, they still had to be cataloged. Judith's work included:

Searching the titles in OCLC (including all title changes) and establishing the entries.

Assigning call numbers and subject headings when necessary.

Informing Susi and Terri of the call numbers.

Editing the record when necessary.

Providing workslips for herself, Lillian, and Miriam.

Lillian's work included:

Cataloging each title.

Providing catalog cards for the main card catalog and other files.

Once in possession of the call number, Susi could begin the work on the first floor. The precise steps were:

Accounting for all volumes (often included searching Periodicals on first, seventh and mezzanine floors).

Withdrawing all superseded bound indexes.

Withdrawing all copy 2's.

Creating a hand-written list of all volumes and parts for Judith.

Writing want slips for missing issues.

Pulling all periodical backfile cards for Judith.

Laura Valenti (work-study student) or Susi then typed a call number label for each book. Susi supervised Laura and Luis Garcia (work-study student) on the following steps:

Writing the call number on the verso of each title page.

Applying a call number label to each book with a heating iron.

Checking for the presence of all labels (University of Miami, For Reference Only, A&I).

The fourth category, Reclassification, consisted of those titles which had been cataloged previously but would now be reclassified, usually from an A or Z classification to a more specific subject class. This was very time consuming because it involved 2,070 bound volumes plus the unbound issues (see Appendix B).

Although these volumes also did not go through Cataloging, there was still work to be done. Judith's work included:

Searching the titles in OCLC (including all title changes) and establishing the entries.

Assigning new call numbers and subject headings when necessary.

Informing Susi and Terri of the call numbers.

Editing the record when necessary.

Providing workslips for herself, Lillian, and Miriam.

Lillian's work included:

Cataloging each title.

Providing catalog cards for the main card catalog and other files.

Once in possession of the call number, Susi could begin the work on the first floor. The work included:

Accounting for all volumes (included searching both Reference and the general stacks).

Withdrawing duplicate bound volumes.

Writing want slips for missing issues.

Creating a list of copy 2's for Judith and for use in typing call number labels.

Susi supervised Laura and Luis during the following steps:

Changing the call number on the verso of each title page.

Checking for the presence of all labels (University of Miami, For Reference Only, A&I).

Pulling the volumes from the shelves (usually two or three titles at a time).

Taking the volumes to Mending for removal of the old call number on the outside of each one.

Retrieving the books from Mending.

Checking to see that the correct information was removed from the cover.

Reshelving the books.

Laura typed a call number label for each book. She and Luis then worked to apply these labels to each book. In most instances, this required using a heating iron to secure them.

IV. Records

While all of this was going on, Terri Robar developed several different A&I lists to be used at the public service desks. The lists were done on the microcomputer using the word processing program SCRIPSIT. They were updated several times throughout the project. After all the titles had been cataloged, the lists were compared to the catalog cards to insure that the wording and spelling of the titles were correct. Final copies were distributed to several different people and placed at the Reference Desk.

The first list is called the A&I Alphalist. This is an alphabetical listing of all A&I titles. It includes all title changes and call numbers. All old titles are cross-referenced to their new titles; new titles include a chronological list of all their old titles. (See Appendix C).

The second list is called the A&I Shelflist. It lists the A&I's in call number order. Under each call number is a chronological listing of all title changes. (See Appendix D).

The third list is called the A&I Keyword Index. This is a keyword out-of-context (KWOC) index. It lists all current titles by every keyword in the title (including subtitles). There are certain stopwords (words not used) such as abstract, index, and bibliography. For clarification, all acronyms are spelled out in the titles. All call numbers are included. (See Appendix E).

The final list is the A&I Subject List. This list groups the titles into an alphabetical arrangement of broad subject headings and has been in use for several years. After the reorganization was completed, Terri updated the list to reflect current holdings and call numbers. (See Appendix F).

Another list which Terri and Susi Seiler developed was the A&I Transfer List. This is a complete list of all titles which were transferred into or out of the A&I area. It included their call numbers, where applicable, and their origin or destination, as appropriate. (See Appendix A).

Copies of these lists were distributed, after final revision, to Terri, Susi, Judith Rabkin, Tom Rogero, Lillian Labelle, Mickey Tsouprake, and Miriam Chamberlain. Copies were also placed in the bibliography folder at the Reference Desk.

Twice a year a special A&I printout is produced by Serials Cataloging. Two copies are kept at the Reference Desk. Due to delays in correcting the periodical printout entries for the A&I's, several other methods were used by Terri to keep people up to date on the project. Each time a call number was assigned or changed, Terri corrected these lists by hand. At the end of the project, two copies of the A&I Alphalist, A&I Shelflist, and A&I Keyword Index were bound and placed at the Reference Desk to replace the A&I printouts. They will remain there until the printout can be fully corrected.

The titles which were transferred from Periodicals to A&I were still listed in the periodical printout as being in Periodicals. Also, the cards for all A&I's were gradually being removed from the periodical backfile. To help alleviate the confusion caused by this contradiction, Terri placed in the backfile a temporary card for each A&I title as it was cataloged. These cards listed the title, location, and call number of each title. The cards will be removed as the periodical printout is corrected.

A special A&I drawer was developed near the reference shelflist in which extra copies of the catalog cards were arranged alphabetically by title. As titles were pulled for cataloging, Terri would put a photocopy of the backfile cards in this drawer. Cross reference cards were added for all titles transferred out of A&I. As the new catalog cards were received for each title, Susi filed these cards in the drawer and removed the backfile photocopies.

This drawer served three purposes:

1. Before the move. Could be used to determine those titles removed from A&I or which were temporarily off the floor being cataloged.

2. During the move. Cards were marked with the location of each title throughout the move so that librarians could find them easily.
3. After the move. Allowed librarians to look up titles alphabetically to learn the call number.

V. Preparing for the Reorganization

Terri Robar and Susi Seiler have been involved in other projects which required the shifting of large collections of books. They were familiar with techniques which worked and problems which could arise. They foresaw additional problems in this move because not only was each book changing its location but the order of the books would also change. They decided that detailed planning was required in order to complete the move swiftly and to keep the collection usable during the move.

The first step in the planning was to gather certain information about each A&I title. Terri did this and organized the information on 3x5 index cards. Each card contained the following information:

1. The call number.
2. The present title and a history of the title.
3. How many shelves each title occupied now.
4. How many shelves each title would occupy in three years.
5. How many shelves each title would occupy in five years.
6. Height of the tallest volume in the series.

7. The present location of the title.

8. The new location of the title after the shift.

Whenever shelf space was measured, the figure was always rounded up to the nearest half shelf in order to allow for easier computations as well as to accomodate changes such as a change in publication frequency. The height of a volume was likewise rounded up to the nearest half inch. Measuring the height was important because this variable was a factor in determining how many shelves would fit in each section. The location of each title was designated by a code which will be explained later.

Terri arranged all this information on the cards as follows:

Call number
Title (see over for history)
Current 3 5
Height:
Location:
Now:

Preparing these cards was the longest part of the preparations. There were 240 cards to be filled out and it took approximately four minutes per card or a total of sixteen hours. The remaining preparations took another two days.

Ideally, the objective was to arrange the A&I area to provide for five years growth room. The next step was to determine what it would take to accomplish this goal and whether these requirements were feasible. Susi worked on all of these figures.

First, Susi determined the number of twelve (12) inch shelves which were currently in the A&I area (a 12" shelf being one that can hold a 12" tall book). The total number was 636 shelves and included both full height and counter height ranges. Then she adjusted this figure to allow for the following factors:

Approximately one-third of the counter height ranges would have three 11" shelves instead of their present two 12" shelves (add 44 shelves).

Eleven (11) titles were taller than 12 inches (subtract 11 shelves).

Growth space had to be left for new titles and was figured at ten (10) new titles in each of the next five (5) years (subtract 50 shelves).

These adjustments resulted in a subtraction of 17 shelves (44-11-50 = -17) from the total number available. The new total was now 619 available shelves (636-17 = 619).

Next, Susi determined the total number of shelves which would be needed to accommodate the present collection while leaving five years of growth room for each title. Using the calculations from Terri's cards and adding 6 shelves for the manufacturers' catalogs (which are stored at the end of the A&I collection), Susi discovered that a total of 683 shelves were needed. This was 64 shelves more than what was available (683-619 = 64).

A decision needed to be made. Either a mere three years of growth room could be left or more shelves had to be added. Susi and Terri took the problem to Tom Rogero for a decision. Tom decided that it would be better to add more shelving. After examining the current shelving and the available space around it, Tom agreed that it would be best to add an additional double-sided section at one end of each of the full-height ranges (of which there were six). This would result in an additional 12 sections or 84 shelves. It would not only allow for the five years of growth room but also would provide another 20 shelves. These additional shelves could be placed throughout the collection to accomodate new titles and to avoid the awkward splitting of a title. An order for the shelving was placed with and approved by Ron Naylor (Assistant Director for Administrative Services).

Susi and Terri could now begin planning for the move itself. The planning was done with copies of the A&I Shelflist which lists the titles in call number order (the order they would be in after the move).

First, Terri listed beside each title the height of the tallest volume and the number of shelves needed to accomodate five years growth room.

Susi then determined the maximum number of inches of volume height which would fit on each section. A counter-height section would hold either 3 shelves of 11-inch books or 2 shelves of 12-inch books for a maximum of 33 inches of volume height. A full-height section would hold either 8 shelves of 11 inch books or 7 shelves of 12 inch books for a maximum of 88 inches of volume height.

The following calculations were very important and had to be accurate. As a safeguard, each person's work was always checked by the other person.

Using the copy of the A&I Shelflist marked with the height and growth room information, Susi determined the final location of each title. She included the space which would be gained by the new shelving. Susi marked each title with a code designating the ranges and sections it would occupy as well as the number of shelves it would need in each section. An example of this would be:

1 A 1 (Range 1, Section A, 1 shelf used)
1 B 2
1 C ½

The extra shelves were spaced throughout the collection to leave growth room for new titles. They were also used to avoid an awkward splitting of a title. Sometimes, adding an extra shelf would prevent a title from being split between two ranges or around a corner. They could also prevent a small title from being split between the bottom shelf of one section and the top of the next (especially on the full-height sections). No more than two shelves at a time were ever used for these purposes.

Using another copy of the A&I Shelflist, Terri converted this work to a clearer, all numerical location designation system. This final list shows where each title will start after the extra shelving is added and a final shift is made. (See Appendix G for sample pages of this plan.) An example of this location designation code looked like this:

1-1-1 (Range 1, Section 1, Shelf 1)
1-1-2
1-1-3

It was obvious that the new shelving could not be received in time to do the major shift which had to be accomplished during the summer months. An interim plan had to be developed. Terri recalculated the final plan by compacting those ranges which would later be extended. By taking out some of the growth room left on each affected range, the titles could be squeezed on. This way, only a minimal amount of shifting will be necessary when the new shelving arrives. This final shift can be done during the school year without disrupting the area or requiring any book trucks.

When this condensed plan was finished, Terri made three working copies for use by Susi, Judith Rabkin, and herself during the move. The final and current location codes were also marked on the index cards so they could be used in the move. These will be referred to hereafter as the 'work cards'.

The catalog cards in the special A&I drawer were checked to be sure that each had the correct code for the title's current location. Also, Terri checked to make sure that there was a card for every title. If the card had not yet been received, she made a temporary one listing the title, call number, and location code. These cards will hereafter be referred to as the 'drawer cards'.

The first number in the location code referred to the number of the range on which the title was located. The ranges had not been numbered in the past. Laura Valenti made very large numbers out of orange construction paper. These were taped onto both ends of each range. The ranges were thereby clearly marked.

The primary reason that everything had to be clearly and accurately marked was that the librarians at the Reference Desk had to be able to service the collection. They had to be able to find any title at any time to assist the patrons. To make certain that each librarian understood the system, Terri held a special training session to explain everything to them.

The meeting only lasted about thirty minutes but it proved to be time well spent. Terri showed the librarians how to read the location codes. She explained about the drawer cards and stated that the cards would be updated several times a day. All of the librarians were reminded that the work crews would be there to work while the librarians would be at the desk to give service. Patrons looking for a title would be sent to the Reference Desk. Terri and Susi later received several compliments on this system from reference librarians who stated that they had no trouble finding any title required.

One final problem was cleared up at this time. The English language encyclopedias share a counter-height range with some of the A&I titles. These encyclopedias had been arranged by call numbers but this had proved somewhat confusing to students and caused such problems as separating the yearbooks from their encyclopedia. It was decided that having two sets of call numbers on one range (encyclopedias and A&I's) would be much too confusing. Susi therefore rearranged the encyclopedia collection into alphabetical order.

VI. Reorganization

The primary problem with this move was that the order of the books would be changed but they would still be located on the same set of ranges. One small counter-height range was the only temporary displacement shelving available. This essentially meant that nothing could move because everything was in everything else's way.

This is why the detailed planning had been done. The final location of every title was known before the move started. It was not necessary to start at one end and move every title in order. That would have required a tremendous amount of temporary displacement shelving to hold the hundreds of titles that would simply be in the way.

The first step was to fill any space that was empty. These 'small areas', as they shall be referred to in this report, could range from one shelf to several sections. They held the relatively small titles as opposed to the large inventory titles. When working on these small areas, the workcrews were constantly shifting throughout the entire A&I area.

Basically, the ideal process with a small area was as follows:

1. A set of shelves would be selected (eg.: one side of a counter-height range).
2. As many of these titles as possible would be lined up on the countertop.
3. The work cards would be changed to show the new location of each title. If they were on top of counter range 5, for example, they would be marked with the location code '5 Top'.
4. The shelves would then be filled with new titles according to the condensed location plan.
5. The work cards for these titles were marked to show that they were in their final location. These cards were then removed from the pile of work cards and set aside.
6. The drawer cards were changed to reflect all of the above changes.

This ideal scenario for a small area was repeated many times and was often going on in as many as four places at once. There had to be one person whose primary duty was just keeping track of the work cards in order for this system to work well. Once several of these small areas had been done, it was possible to start on the next step.

The next step was moving the big titles such as the inventory titles listed in Appendix B. Before Chemical Abstracts could be moved, for example, its destination area (a total of 73 shelves) had to be cleared. For the sake of the librarians at the Reference Desk, Terri Robar and Susi Seiler had decided whenever possible to always move an entire title and not just part of it.

The ideal scenario went as follows:

1. Many of the titles in the destination area had already been moved because some of the small areas were done first.
2. Another small area might be started by another workcrew because it would take several more of the titles out of the big title's destination area.
3. The tops of nearby counters would be filled with titles from the destination area.
4. The few remaining titles would then be moved out of the way to the temporary displacement shelving.

With all of the shelves in the destination area cleared, the big title could now be moved. Don Carreau (Reference) was especially helpful with this part of the reorganization. Working either by himself or with Susi, he would concentrate on moving that one title as quickly and accurately as possible. This freed the regular workcrews to continue with the smaller titles. Of course, once a big title was moved, its former location could then be filled in.

These ideal scenarios would often need to be modified to accomodate the peculiarities of the collection or the number of workers who were on duty. The modifications, however, were usually both minor and temporary.

Susi and Terri were the primary supervisors of the reorganization. Although they split the duties, Terri spent most of her time handling the paperwork (the work cards and drawer cards) while Susi spent most of her time directing the workcrews. Terri kept a list of the next several small areas which could be moved so that Susi could keep the work going.

At the time of the reorganization, the library's air conditioning system was not working. Because of the excessive heat, no one was asked to work more than two hours a day. Susi and Terri both voluntarily put in six hours a day (although at least part of this time was used for paperwork). The total number of manhours required for the move was 85.

Susi.....24
Terri.....24

The paperwork and final planning began at 8:00 a.m. on Monday, June 9, 1986 and ended at 4:00 p.m. on Thursday, June 12. The physical move itself began at 9:00 a.m. on Monday, June 9 and ended at 2:30 p.m. on Thursday, June 12.

VII. Final Phase

With the books now in call number order, it was necessary to relabel and renumber all of the ranges to assist the librarians in directing a patron to the proper location. Many of the ranges were found to be lacking label holders. A few of them had numbers (not counting the temporary ones made from construction paper) but these numbers no longer corresponded to the arrangement of the shelving.

Tom Rogero decided on the styles of label holders to be used on the counter-height and full-height ranges. Susi Seiler determined the number of each style that were needed and compiled an order for them. She submitted this order to Naomi Metcalf (Staff Assistant, Director's Office). When the holders were received, they were installed by Gary Heath (Maintenance Mechanic). Susi and Terri Robar placed temporary, hand-written labels in the holders. Permanent labels will be made during the Fall Semester 1986. Susi put plastic label covers in all of the holders.

Tom decided that numbers printed on a metal backing would be the most durable. Susi Seiler determined the amount of each number that were needed and compiled an order for them. She submitted this order to Naomi. Gary removed some old numbers of this style which were still on the endpanels. When the new numbers were received, Terri and Susi put them in place on the ranges. Once the final shift has been completed, Terri will add the location designation codes to the A&I Shelflist.

Want slips for missing A&I issues were filled out by different people throughout the project from January 1985 to May 1986. All of these were given to Susi. As they were received, Susi verified that the cards were written correctly. This included checking all the carbons for clarity and making a note of all title changes. Once a month, she or Luis Garcia searched for the missing A&I issues (under all title changes) in Periodicals, Reference, the main stacks, on the mezzanine, and on the seventh floor in the old periodicals.

In June 1986, Susi pulled all records for A&I titles from the want slip file in the bindery office (again, checking under all title changes). These records were compared against the want slips mentioned above and were divided into two categories: discrepancies and no discrepancies.

All of those with discrepancies were checked against the actual volume on the shelf. If the issue was no longer needed, the record was thrown away. The other records were corrected as needed. Many of these corrections were necessary due to volumes which had been bound incomplete but which had one or more of the following problems:

1. The spine of the volume did not show that the volume was incomplete.
2. There was no note inside the volume indicating a missing issue.
3. The record from the want slip file did not indicate that the volume was incomplete.

4. The reference shelflist or periodical backfile did not indicate that the volume was incomplete.

Those records which showed no discrepancies were matched with the corresponding want slips written during the project. Both were used to decide in which of the following categories each missing issue would be placed:

1. Officially withdraw the missing issue. Change all necessary records. Make no further attempt at replacing the issue.
2. Bind volume incomplete. Several unsuccessful attempts to replace the issue had already been made by Serials Acquisitions.
3. Attempt to replace the missing issue.

Once these decisions had been made, Susi gave all of the want slips and records to Francine Everson. They were then processed and/or refiled.

Susi and Don composed a list of A&I titles which were recommended for cancellation. The reasons for these recommendations included such things as duplication of coverage or possible lack of use. This list was sent to all the subject bibliographers and the Assistant Director for Collection Development. These people were asked to submit their opinions and recommendations.

When the results of the survey were compiled by Susi, there were three titles that everyone agreed should be cancelled. She submitted this list of recommended cancellations to Carol Ahmad (Assistant Director for Collection Development) and Tom Rogers for their consideration. (See Appendix H).

According to the new policy regarding A&I's (see p. 1), any title which has not been received in five years shall be reviewed for possible transfer out of the collection. At this time, Susi compiled a list of those A&I titles which had been discontinued and listed the date of their review for transfer. This list was also sent to Tom and Carol. (See Appendix H).

A policy was developed for the procedure to be followed when an A&I title is discontinued. Miriam Chamberlain will change her records and notify Judith Rabkin. Judith will change the cataloging records and notify Susi. Susi will update the list of discontinued or cancelled titles (including the date of their review for transfer).

At the end of each fiscal year, a list of all A&I titles which are due for review for possible transfer shall be submitted to Tom. The bibliographers shall be consulted as necessary.

A policy was also established to ensure that all bound volumes of A&I's are added to the Reference shelflist. When a prebound cumulative is received, Ana Rosa Nunez (Reference) or her student assistant will add this volume to the shelflist card.

For those titles which are sent to the bindery, Tom receives one copy of the bindery slip when each volume is returned. He will give this slip to one of the Reference clerks who will add the volume to the shelflist card.

This project took twenty months from start to finish. The cataloging was the longest part of the project. The number of bound volumes which were handled was:

Cataloged...2320
Inventory...2272
Reclass.....2070

Total.....6662

There was much more to this project, however, than just cataloging the volumes. A tremendous amount of paperwork and record keeping developed. Procedures and policies had to be worked out for many aspects of the collection. More people were directly involved than had been originally planned. Many others were at least peripherally involved.

There has been talk in recent years at Richter Library about the possibility of cataloging the journal collection. It is to be hoped that the lessons learned during this A&I project will be remembered and applied if the journal project is undertaken. The purpose of this report has been to record as fully as possible every step so that it may be used as a guideline in the future.

ADDENDUM

Revised Label Policy

During the Fall Semester of 1986, it became obvious that many of the call number labels attached during the project were not sticking properly. The following pages are an explanation of the problem and the proposed solution. This new policy was approved as written.

MEMORANDUM

To: Tom Rogero

Date: September 25,1986

From: Terri Robar

Re: A&I labels

During the A&I project of 1985/86, numerous labels were applied to the outside of the A&I's. There have been complaints, particularly during the Summer of 1986, that these labels were loose or missing. Due to a malfunction in the air conditioning system, the heat and humidity within the library were very bad during this time period. This was originally believed to the source of the problem.

Recent examination of the books, however, suggests otherwise. While the heat may have contributed to the problem, the main culprit seems to be the covers of the books themselves. The vast majority of the volumes with loose or missing labels are those bound by Dobbs or Zodiac within the last five years. At that time, they apparently changed to a new type of bindery material. It is visibly different from the old type and feels different as well. Mending reported great difficulty in removing old call numbers from these volumes because some chemical in the bindery would react negatively with their acid.

This same chemical apparently is reacting with the glue on the labels to reduce its effectiveness. Putting the labels on with a heating iron does not seem to have made any difference.

In an effort to combat this problem, Susi and I have developed the following policy. We now submit it to you for your review and approval.

Abstracts and Indexes

Policy on Labels

A&I Labels

Each bound volume will have one A&I label. The preferred location for it is at the bottom of the spine. If there is not enough room there for the label, it will be placed in the upper left-hand corner on the front cover. The label will be placed at the top of the spine ONLY if the earlier volumes were done this way. All unbound issues will have one A&I label placed on the front cover directly under the call number.

If the volume is one which was sent to the bindery, the A&I label will be firmly applied to the book and then covered by a strip of scotch tape. The labels of all volumes kept on the index tables will also be covered by tape. If the volume is a prebound cumulative received from the publisher, the A&I label will be applied without tape.

Call Number Labels

During the A&I Project of 1985/86, the bound volumes in the Inventory and Reclassification categories each received a typed label bearing its new call number. Over the next three years, these labels will gradually be replaced by Mending. One truck of books (approx. 30 volumes) will be taken to Mending each week.

The first priority will be any complete set or sizable portion of a set for which all of the call number labels are known to be missing or damaged. The second priority will be the last five years of titles which the library sent to a binder. Older volumes and prebound volumes will then be done if necessary.

Implementation

One range per week will checked for A&I labels by a student under Terri's supervision. All missing or damaged A&I labels will be replaced according to the rules stated above.

The A&I area will be shelfread each week by work-study students. All unbound issues which lack call numbers are to be given to Terri who will correct them and have them reshelved. All bound volumes which lack call numbers will be reported to Susi who will send them to Mending when possible.

Once a week, a student under Susi's supervision will fill one book truck with volumes according to the priority list. All call number labels will be removed. This book truck will be taken to Mending to have the call numbers written on the volumes. When the book truck is returned from Mending, Susi will check the work and see that the volumes are shelved.
